What is a Nick Cavanagh Portrait Day?

In order to make the most of a good location and remove any cost of studio hire I like to offer portrait sessions where a number of different clients can make the most of a great outside location on the same day. Usually a portrait day is made up of 5-6 different families all having reserved their hour long appointment in advance.

I always encourage clients to make the most of the time and extra siblings, pets and Grandparents are more than welcome.

We call this 'Environmental Portraiture'. It can be done in the street, a park or even abandoned factories. The choice of location greatly affects the mood of a portrait and instead of a studio with a white cloth background I'm able to make the most of a classic stone bridge or very old tree

What does it cost?

The portrait session costs €50 and a 12" * 8" desktop frame is included in the price.

There is no obligation to purchase additional prints, but larger prints are available as finished frames.

Prices begin at €90 for desk-frames and €190 for larger wall hung frames. These are produced on a bespoke basis to gallery and exhibition level standards.

Tips for a great portrait:

What to wear:

Encourage children to wear neutral colours with little or no strong logos.

Dress for the weather: Scarves, wellies and hats are all fine
Are they comfortable?

What not to do:

If a child is reluctant, don't worry! An hour is usually long enough to bring them round and still get great images.

Don't tell a child that they have to smile. Forced smiles look worse than sulks!

Bad Weather Days:

When the weather is so bad that creating images is going to be impossible we will re-arrange to a suitable time.

This can usually be done quickly in the next few days.

Let them be children
